

Evidence Service: Spring Update

Highlight On: : Coproduction: Towards Equality In Mental Healthcare edited by Julian Raffay, Don Bryant, Pamela Fisher, Catherine Mills, Mick McKeown, Tim Thornton.

This collection of chapters casts a critical eye on the concept of coproduction in our national mental health and learning disability services. Is it naive idealism? A one-way road to co-opting the independent user/survivor movement? A major challenge to the hegemony of the psychiatric profession? The next progressive step in the shift away from medicalised care? Or is it simply unaffordable, unacceptable and unmanageable to policymakers, decision-takers and funding bodies? Contributors from across the mental health arena offer critical analysis and case examples of coproduction in principle and practice.

This new and ground-breaking work written and edited by many MCFT colleagues and friends is now available to borrow! Check out our catalogue for availability and to see our full stock of books and ebooks.

Decommissioning of HDAS

Just a reminder that the HDAS \(Healthcare Databases Advanced Search\) is being decommissioned by NHS England/HEE and will be switched off at the end of March 2022. Access to bibliographic databases previously available through HDAS will be via provider interfaces, currently ProQuest, Ovid and EBSCO.

If you have previously used HDAS and have saved searches on there please make sure you export them before 31 March 2022 to retain a copy. Details about how to do this, together with information and guidance on using the new interfaces can be found at <https://www.evidentlybetter.org/advanced-searching-main/2022/01/advanced-searching/>

As with the HDAS, to access the new interfaces you will need to use your Open Athens account, to request an account or reset your password please email us: library@merseycare.nhs.uk
